5. Noise

This is a brief note to update Members on the DfT's current policy development work. The DfT is hosting a series of discussion groups with members of the DfT's Airspace and Noise Engagement Group (ANEG). There is a range of different interests and parties involved. They have discussed the night flights policy review and an overarching noise policy, in particular how noise should be measured. Further groups will look at regulatory measures and enforcement, Air Quality, health effects and land use planning. The outcomes from these discussion groups will feed into the DfT's policy development leading to a revised noise policy paper expected later in 2022.

The Government also aims to publish in the fairly near future an overarching aviation policy framework which will take a look at the industry and its challenges over the medium term.
